Aff

- Debate math is pointless dude don't waste time on it
- Respond to specific cards in the contention - hard to follow you
- Elaborate on the anti-American sentiment part - you kind of just throw it out there
- You missed one key aspect about how free trade increases inequality b/c if you concede that free trade = inequality it's hard to vote for you
- CB analysis doesn't help you
- Ultimately, if ~~the~~ Russian investment was really that important
- $1.6 billion is like 15 Ashter jets = not much relative to trade
- If you're gonna argue that U.S. trade > Russia and China trade - you need warrants
- The thing you say in FF is not true ahaha about U.S. supporting democracy

neg

- I find it odd that you argue that being
- At the end of the day the FW debate is pointless b/c both are impacts
- Ask them if Russian investment is so prevalent - why hasn't it changed policy for literally the last 50 years
- Focus on clearer external - you have a lot of stuff on the flow but external it so I can clearly vote off of it
- Recall that trade goes both ways: when
- ~~Point on FW debate~~
- Ask them to impact the anti-American sentiment
- Good work on the double burden in the final focus
- Frame the free trade

~~Added~~
 Con's prioritizing affect on Cuba over that of U.S. not countered by Pro and effectively argued by Con. Pro did not defeat Con's arguments, but Con defeated Pro's arguments.

Thomas → I like how you sort of backed into China being a model for Cuba. More democracy creates a safer world was a good point I had not previously heard.

Goswick → workers would be more exploited. The second argument about slave labor kind of sounds like the first point about exploiting workers. I'm not sure how the subcontractor argument supports the leverage argument. Your permit response was good and your explanation of the 90%. You were really good on cross. Especially w/ the trade w/ China v. trade w/ US.

Tomooka → mitigating the 90% by ↑ the 10% was a great point. China placing its people was a great point as well. ^{The} Cuba ^{turn} was very good. Waw! your rebuttal to the "throwing shade" on China was fantastic! You make a lot of sense!

Raju → "That's not necessarily true" doesn't mean it couldn't be true. ~~Decreasing~~ You're talking so fast that I can't really follow you. You don't really address the argument about how China does have care of its people and so would Cuba.

Low argument in ex on non-uniqueness of choice drawing

If vote can be to analysis of labor gov. control in the 90-1000 analysis. Off needs a strong argument the free trade will happen across of labor regime.
